The Superintending School Committee submit their annual report for the year ending March, 1875.

The success of our schools this year, we think, compare favorably with that of former years.

Many of the teachers have possessed the requisite qualifications for success, and their schools have exhibited marked progress in mental, and also moral culture; while some, we fear, have lacked the proper endowments for successful teachers, and their schools have suffered to some extent in consequence.

Prudential Committees, in the selection of teachers to take charge of the intellectual and moral training of the youth, are called to the discharge of very responsible duties. Persons possessing the needful qualifications for teachers—the proper literary attainments, patience, firmness, discretion, energy and aptness to teach—are rare indeed; and much care and precaution should be exercised in their selection, to the end that the services of only the best may be secured, though additional expense may be incurred and the terms be shorter; for a short good school is always preferable to a poor one, however long the terms. We would also urge upon their attention the importance of securing teachers early in the year, before other localities have culled out the best; and, if possible, before the friends and relatives of incompetent teachers have time to importune them.

Thoroughness is all essential to every good school. The aim should be not so much to get through a book as to master it,—every lesson and topic—completely. Scholars thus reap the full benefits of whatever useful information the books contain, and also find their minds disciplined, strengthened and invigorated thereby, and better prepared to master more advanced and difficult studies. Indeed, thoroughness will be found to facilitate rapid advancement, and to enable scholars to obtain a good education at less cost of time even, than a superficial one.

One obstacle, and by no means the least, to this needed reform, is inconstancy of attendance. It effectually prevents all thoroughness on the part of the delinquents, and, by discouraging, destroys all interest in their studies. This evil, however, does not end here. If the schools be well classified, it extends to all those in the same class, and retards likewise the punctual causing the innocent as well as the erring to suffer.

Another hindrance to thoroughness, especially in mathematics, is the lack of sufficient space of black-board. When sufficiently extensive and properly used, the board enables teachers to detect superficiality and to correct the habit, aids, the pupils to rapidity and ease in writing, gives confidence and cultivates the power to readily communicate their ideas. It should be sufficiently extensive in every school-room to allow all the members of the largest classes to work on it at the same time. And yet not one in the town, unless it be the High School room, has such a supply; and not more than three or four have more than enough to accommodate two scholars at once, though we have many neat and otherwise convenient school houses. The fact that this convenience can be secured at trifling expense, makes its want the more to be regretted. It is hoped that in building or repairing school-rooms hereafter, care will be given to this matter. Let there be a walk entirely around the room between the seats and the walls—in rear as well as at the sides—and have all the walls in the room above the ceiling as high as scholars can conveniently reach, done off in hard finish and painted for blackboard purposes. The additional expense at such times would hardly be noticeable.

Mark bold dred and Well Tidle It is believed that much time is nearly wasted by delving in Greenleaf's National Arithmetic, to the detriment of other useful studies; that the mind could be better disciplined and more profitable information acquired by pursuing some of the sciences, now neglected to give place for this unnecessary text-book, which is always superficially taught and its principles illy understood, by reason of its abstruseness. The Common School Arithmetic contains quite enough for the actual requirements of life, and is as much of Arithmetic as is to be found in the best graded schools in the country. Its greater simplicity causes it to be more thoroughly taught and better understood than the National. It is to be regretted that the latter book ever found a place in our common schools; and its early banishment therefrom we are convinced would be beneficial.

A High School, accessible to all scholars of the town, upon the attainment of certain qualifications, is much to be desired. For such a school the statutes make provision, and it would in no wise interfere with the present district system. In the lower grades it would be an incentive to scholars, and the qualifications prescribed for entering it would serve to compel due attention to be given to all the elementary studies alike. While scholars in easy circumstances could by means of it more economically acquire an education at home than abroad, it would also enable many a poor, but earnest student to obtain an education, who would otherwise be deprived of it.

Little has been expended upon school-houses the past year. No new ones have been built. The house in district No. 10 has been repaired at an expense of about $75, and now presents quite a neat and tidy appearance within and without. It is to be regretted, however, that it was not provided with good blackboard facilities.

Lastly, parents and citizens should make more frequent visits to the school room. They would thus encourage and stimulate both scholars and teachers. In districts where this custom prevails, are invariably to be found our best schools.

Herewith are submitted tabular statistics of the several schools.

The Superintending School Committee for District No. 8, present the following report of the general condition and success of the schools under their supervision for the year ending March, 1875.

Your Committee are happy to report that there has been throughout the year a highly gratifying degree of prosperity and success in the various schools in this District.

During the first term of the year, one or two of the Primary schools were much interrupted by measles. The school on Elmst was nearly broken up in consequence of this disease, nearly one half the pupils being affected by it, and also the teacher, who was unable to return to her position the following term. With a change of teacher, and another epidemic, the progress of the second term was also much retarded. The winter term, however, proved a more successful one, and showed a marked improvement in every respect over the preceding ones. Through the fidelity and zeal of the new teacher, much of the lost ground was recovered, and at the close of the term it compared favorably with the other primaries.

During the winter term, the Main-st Primary was invaded by whooping cough, and for a time its numbers were somewhat depleted. These epidemics, together with the extreme severity of the weather, should be taken into consideration, in judging of the average attendance of the little folks.

In the last annual report, reference was made to the beneficial results already achieved by the recent gradation of our schools. It was stated in substance, that although much had been accomplished, still the work was not finished.

The thorough classification of schools, of course, requires time as well as faithful, persistent effort.-It could not be expected that classes could at once be brought to the rank of those in towns where the system has been established for years. The first year or two would necessarily be preparatory. That there has been decided progress in this direction, during the past year, we think is clearly apparent to all who have watched the schools. The closing examinations evinced that the work assigned for the year, had been more thoroughly performed than in the previous year, and that pupils of every grade were much better, prepared for advancement. The same teachers, with two exceptions, have been employed during the year as in the preceding; and the Committee feel that a large measure of praise is justly due them for the unremitting zeal and fidelity with which they have performed their duties. Parents, too, have lent much encouragement to the cause, by visiting schools and attending examinations. One of the most effective means of stimulating pupils, is an interest on the part of parents. It is also a great incentive to the teachers. Allida Allif out for Commission of the Rain.

A most important requisite to the success of a system in our schools, is regularity of attendance. It is no less important to the pupil. Irregularity not only breaks up the uniformity of the class, but effectually hinders all the advancement in the pupil. A scholar who is absent now and then a day, or the most of a week, or having been an entire ferm, stays out the next, "cannot keep up with the class," reither can he acquire accurate and practical knowledge. back to the next class, much of the time must be spent in going over the same old ground, until it becomes wearisome and he loses all interest. If the attempt is made to go forward, he finds himself overtaxed by the effort of making up lost lessons and often gets discouraged. Did parents more fully realize this evil, we are sure they would do much to lessen it.

The great and pressing need of our schools at this time, is that of more and better accommodations. The lack of suitable room is perhaps the most serious difficulty with which we have to contend. The building on Wakefield-st, is cramped, dirty and dilapidated in fact, a disgrace—as those who attended the recent examinations need not be told. Its size is entirely inadequate to the number of scholars, and we hope it may at an early day give place to a larger and more convenient house. The Hall school suffers much from the unfitness of the room. The Grammar school, too, perhaps the most important of all, from the fact that a large proportion of our scholars graduate here, needs more room and blackboard space. Our Primary schools, too, are to a great extent destitute of desks-a most important convenience for the little child.

Your Committee feel that they cannot too urgently commend this subject to the attention of the district.

Herewith are submitted tabular and other statistics, together with the course of study for the High School.

REMARKS.—The last year of the English Department is designed more especially for students wishing to prepare for teaching. Especial attention is to be given, to the Theory and Practice of Teaching. Students of the English and Classical Department, can avail themselves of its advantages, by adopting the Normal as their Optional studies throughout the year.

The number of Optional studies allowed each class is not to exceed two.

Students of the English Department, not desiring to prepare for teaching, will be allowed to graduate at the close of the third year. Graduates of any of the departments will receive suitable Diplomas.

One class of the High School as now constituted, properly belongs to the Grammar School, and their studies are not prescribed in the foregoing course, but are to be found in the Grammar School course of study.

The question, no doubt, will arise, why so large a balance was held in the treasury? And in reply, allow us to say, that it was to help reduce our rate of interest for the coming year, by the same method that has been pursued through the last year. At the beginning of the fiscal year about half of our outstanding notes were at a rate of 7 and 73-10 interest. Not one of them, to our knowledge, is above 6 per cent. to-day, and we supposed that as a matter of course the town would vote to hire money at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent., and exempt the same from taxation, as provided by law. If this is done, it will be necessary to have a few thousand to begin with, as not all will decide to allow their notes to remain. Yet no investment can be safer than a town note at 5 per cent. interest, exempt from taxes.

The amount of State Tax to be raised for 1876, is County Tax, $4,460 00 4,348 26

$8,808 26

There is deposited for School District No. 9, in Norway Plains Savings Bank, $500 00, which was raised in 1873, but no school house is being built.

FOR THE TOWN,

AND FOR

SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 8,

IN THE

TOWN OF ROCHESTER,

FOR THE

Year Ending March, 1876.

Town of Rochester, March 15, 1876.

At the Annual Town Meeting, on presentation of the Report of the School Committee, the following vote was passed:

Voted, that the Report of the Superintending School Committee be printed with the Town Reports.

Attest,

ALBERT T. COTTON, Town Clerk.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

To the Citizens of Rochester:

The schools, as a whole, have been quite as successful as in former years; and as efficient, perhaps, as could reasonably be expected under our present system of school management. True, many have failed to reach that degree of proficiency to which we wish all might attain; others, however, more fortunate in teachers and other circumstances, have been model schools.

The aids to good schools are very numerous; some of which we will notice.

A neat, pleasant and well arranged school-room is a material aid. It shows that the citizens themselves have a lively interest in the schools; pupils, and also teachers, catch the same spirit, and the cause of popular education seems vested with new importance.— Scholars become more studious, and teachers more zealous and enthusiastic. In fact, give a school a new house, and with it you give a new impetus to the school. On the other hand, let scholars who are accustomed to neat, comfortable homes, be assigned to school-rooms not better than many a stable in town, and possessing none of the conveniences requisite to a school-room, and what importance can they be expected to attach to the acquisition of an education? And how can they be expected to be zealous for study, or the teacher enthusiastic in his work, when citizens treat the cause so shabbily? If a poor school is to be found, as a rule, it will be in the old black, dilapidated and inconvenient school-house. We are happy to state that we have but few such in town, but it is high time those few gave place to better structures.

Ample space of black-board is a very important aid. It should be sufficiently extensive to allow whole classes in mathematics to work on it at the same time. Teachers are thus, with little loss of time, enabled to discover the superficial scholars, and to correct the habit. It is also very useful to classes in geography, grammar and spelling. A convenience so necessary, and obtainable at trifling expense, has been strangely overlooked in many otherwise neat and well arranged school-rooms throughout the town.

Thorough, systematic supervision is an indispensable aid to efficient schools. Few have any adequate idea of the amount of time wasted for want of it. Scholars are eager to make rapid advancement in their studies. often to the sacrifice of thoroughness; parents frequently importune teachers to the same end; and the great mass of teachers, thus induced, or through their own indiscretion, permit their pupils, by a system of cramming, to pass hurriedly over fundamental principles, and often through all the elementary studies with little or no understanding of principles, and often so superficially as to acquire very little knowledge which can be of any profit to them in the active duties of life, or which they can even retain in memory to the end of the term. School privileges thus improved are of little consequence. Pupils are thus disqualified to make progress in more advanced rules and studies for want of a proper knowledge of first principles. These they must turn back to and go over again. And this process is oft times repeated in the same superficial manner as at first. Such scholars constantly find themselves beyond their depth, and know not how to extricate themselves. They have no proper habits of study, and no true conception of the modes to be pursued to acquire knowledge. And yet, this is just the condition of a majority of the scholars in a majority of the schools in this and other towns.

A faithful, competent supervisor, by devoting all his time to the interests of the schools, would be able to learn the qualifications of all the scholars in town, and to give directions to teachers when to keep them upon first principles and when to advance them. Under such supervision scholars scarcely able to read intelligently in the Fourth Reader would not be found in the Sixth, nor stumbling through Miscellaneous Examples at the end of Greenleaf's National Arithmetic without a proper knowledge of Vulgar Fractions; nor would they be allowed to attend our district schools from the fourth to the twenty-first year of their age with only one-half the studies they are capable of pursuing, and to waste one-half their time in annoying teachers and disturbing the schools. System would be instituted where there is no system. All the best schools in the state are thus supervised.

Efficient teachers are always indispensable aids to good schools. Persons having the qualities requisite for good teachers are rare indeed. Not that the mass of our teachers lack literary attainments so much as enthusiasm, discretion and tact in management of schools. Persons quite deficient in literary qualifications often succeed well in the school-room, but persons lacking the other qualifications, never.

And yet Prudential and Superintending committees have but little means of knowing whether or not teachers have these qualifications. The former are generally ignorant upon this point, and know not how important it is that their teachers possess these qualifications to insure good schools; while the latter, though recognizing their importance, have usually no means of ascertaining other than the literary qualifications of the candidates presenting themselves for examination, and for the most part are as much in the dark in reference to their other qualifications as are the Prudential committee. These can only be learned by personal observation of their school room manage. ment, or from the like observations of other competent school judges. But in a majority of cases the committee have no opportunity for such personal observation, the candidates often being entire strangers to them, and seldom have any chance to learn of others.

We think their should be a remedy for this. In many of the states applicants, at the outset, have to present, to those empowered to engage teachers, certificates from State or County Supervisors. Upon these certificates is indicated the possessor's ability for school management, provided they have ever taught in the State.

The law provides that any school district may raise money for school purposes in addition to that required to be raised by law. Some of the large districts would do well to avail themselves of this provision: for instance, that at East Rachester where the amount of school money expended for each scholar is less than in any other district in town. The like recommendation might doubtless be made to the Gonic and other school districts.

Lastly, might not some of our small school districts be united, to their mutual advantage, thereby securing longer schools and more money with which to obtain abler teachers? Very small schools are usually devoid of the interest manifested in those of medium size.

GEORGE S. LINDSEY, EZRA PRAY, HENRY KIMBALL,

Superintending School Committee of Rochester.

REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee,

FOR DISTRICT No. 8.

The schools for the year have been successful, and as great a degree of progress made, it is believed, as in any former year; nor has this progress been had at the sacrifice of thoroughness.

The course of study introduced two years ago has materially enhanced even the progress of the pupils in their studies, but its especial aim was to secure thoroughness; and in this respect, even now, it has been eminently successful. The readiness and thoroughness of the pupils at the last examination was very marked, especially in the lower grades, where the course has become more completely established, and its fruits more observable. In fact, the pupils of the Grammar School, now as a whole, can successfully compete in scholarship with the average scholar in the High School three years ago. If not interfered with the good effects of the course, we feel sure, will ere long extend to, and be equally as beneficial to the higher grades. Then we trust the High School will rise to a level with other similar schools in the State. The great hinderance to good schools in this district has been the want of suitable school room accommodations. This want, however, has been in part supplied by the erection of a neat and substantial school building on Maple street, with two spacious and convenient school rooms. The parents, and especially the scholars, ought to rejoice in its completion; and they may be sure the teachers and committee will join in the common joy.

But the old uninviting house on Wakefield street, with its two rooms crowded so full of seats as to leave little other space, devoid of the conveniences of the country school-rooms of to-day, is still entailed upon us, but we hope and trust for no great length of time. Scholars in rooms of the character of these, with everything about them uninviting, never take the interest or make so rapid advancement in their studies as those in suitable school rooms with attractive surroundings. The interests of education, the health of the scholars and the honor of the place all require a better school building there.

The efficiency of our teachers, and schools likewise, we think are underestimated by the citizens, and especially by those who never visit the schools. We believe it has been the constant aim of prudential committees for the last three or four years, at least, to secure the services of none but first-class teachers. Not that mistakes, common to all humanity, have not at times been made in the selection of teachers, but in the main those selection have been eminently successful, and the district, as a rule, has had the best teaching talent that the means provided would secure. The great difficulty, and often failures, in attempts to supply the places of one of these teachers, when made vacant by reason of wounds from Cupid's arrows, or by other causes, often attest this fact. The best available teachers that can be found not only in Rochester, but wherever they may be, are placed in the village schools, and as a whole are a very superior corps of teachers. True there may be others nearer home equally well qualified, but if so, their abilities have not come into notice. There may be, and doubtless are, those with better literary qualifications than some now employed in the district. But literary qualifications are by no means the only requisite for successful teaching. It is not so much what a teacher knows as what he may be able to impart. One might have all the literary attainments of Newton, and yet, if without the tact and enthusiasm prosessed by the illiterate Cromwell, utterly fail in the school room. No one in any sphere can ever arrive to any great degree of success unless he has a love for and is enthusiastic in his work. But in no calling is this love and enthusiasm more indispensable than in that of the teacher. He stamps his own spirit upon his school. If he is all aglow with enthusiasm he imparts the same spirit to his pupils, giving them a zest and relish for school-room duties. Enthusiasm in a school is like "the heat which softens the iron that it may receive an impress from the hammer." One teacher will fail to teach a child the alphabet in two terms of twelve weeks each, another will teach it to the same child in eight or ten days. Enthusiasm in the one and the absence of it in the other, makes the difference; one day's school of the one is worth a week of the other. Teachers, otherwise competent, who are able to infuse their schools with this spirit, are, perhaps, not like "angel visits," but are rare indeed. And, so long as supply governs prices, such teachers will command better pay than ordinary mill and shop hands.

One of the greatest evils in our schools is irregularity of attendance. During the last year twenty per cent., one out of every five of the pupils of our schools, have on an average been absent from them each day. Most of the schools of any standing in the state or country report not more than half that amount. Scholars absent one day in five must lose one fifth of their recitations, and be incapacitated to understand the other four-fifths. Thus they not only throw away their own schooling, but work an injury to all their classmates by retarding their progress. If parents would correct this evil, and that of tardiness as well, for both of which in the main they are accountable, we feel sure there would be less occasion to disparage our schools or teachers.

REMARKS.

The last year of the English Department is designed more especially for students wishing to prepare for teaching. Especial attention is to be given to the Theory and Practice of Teaching. Students of the English and Classical Department can avail themselves of its advantages, by adopting the Normal as their Optional studies throughout the year.

The number of Optional studies allowed each class is not to exceed two.

Students of the English Department, not desiring to prepare for teaching, will be allowed to graduate at the close of the third year. Graduates of any of the departments will receive suitable Diplomas.

One class of the High School as now constituted, properly belongs to the Grammar School, and their studies are not prescribed in the foregoing course, but are to be found in the Grammar School course of study.
